UPGRADE Ride the Wave MODERN BASICS TO STOKE YOUR WATERY FUN by Stephanie Pearson

a. Vans's Hanalei flip-flops ($19), with a cushy foot-bed and anatomical plastic straps, are comfortable enough to stand in all day.

The polarized polymer lenses on b. Smith's Colson sunglasses ($209) cut through glare and make colors pop. The ultralight frames offer easy leash integration.

The coconut scent of c. Bubble Gum's Organik Blend surf wax ($3) belies how well it keeps you stuck to your board.

With generous volume and flat rocker, the d. Boardworks Flying Pig short board ($540) minimizes error for a forgiving ride. The sturdy carbon-and-fiberglass body is made for going fast on small waves.

e. Cynthia Rowley's Dark Jewel Print wetsuit ($295) has a funky island vibe but boasts distinct technical aspects, like the 0.2-millimeter neoprene body and unobtrusive zipper with Velcro closure.

Zinc oxide in All Good's 50 SPF waterproof f. Sunscreen Butter ($10) shields you from rays. Calendula flowers and coconut oil impart a heavenly smell.

Each g. Rareform Daylight board bag (from $80) started as a weatherproof billboard. Extra padding and rust-resistant zippers make it nearly indestructible.

h. Patagonia's RO long-sleeved top ($45) is made from recycled polyester-spandex with four-way stretch and 50 UPF protection. It breathes in heat but provides insulation should temperatures swing.

A triple-eyelet lace-up waist and three pockets are the only doodads on the i. Outerknown Pocket Evolution trunks ($95). The roomy fit keeps you comfy in a crouch.
